> Walking together means recognizing that lasting change is created through relationships. This conference brings together Inuit organizations, Elders, youth, governments, researchers, educators, health professionals, community organizations, and industry partners to strengthen services, celebrate Inuit knowledge, and build a more equitable future for Inuit living in urban communities.

WELCOME

Welcome to Walking Together

Across Canada, more Inuit are living in urban communities than ever before. While cities provide opportunities for education, employment, health care, and community connections, they also present unique challenges for Inuit children, youth, families, and service providers.

The Walking Together: Serving Inuit in Urban Spaces Conference has been created to bring together those who are committed to improving outcomes for urban Inuit through collaboration, innovation, cultural revitalization, and relationship building.

Hosted by Inuuqatigiit Centre for Inuit Children, Youth and Families, this national gathering will provide a welcoming space where Inuit voices lead conversations about service delivery, policy, culture, education, wellness, and community development. Over three days, participants will exchange knowledge, strengthen partnerships, celebrate successes, and explore practical solutions that reflect Inuit priorities and lived experiences.

Whether you attend as an Inuit organization, community leader, educator, health professional, researcher, government representative, or corporate partner, your participation contributes to a shared commitment to strengthening Inuit communities for generations to come.

Together, we walk forward.

ABOUT INUUQATIGIIT CENTRE

Who We Are

For decades, Inuuqatigiit Centre for Inuit Children, Youth and Families has served as a trusted, Inuit-led organization supporting Inuit living in Ottawa and surrounding communities.

Grounded in Inuit culture, language, values, and ways of knowing, Inuuqatigiit Centre provides programs and services that strengthen families, empower youth, celebrate Elders, and preserve Inuit identity within urban environments.

The Centre recognizes that Inuit living outside Inuit Nunangat continue to maintain strong cultural connections while navigating unique realities associated with urban life.

Through culturally grounded programming, community partnerships, advocacy, and leadership, Inuuqatigiit Centre helps ensure Inuit families remain connected to their culture while accessing services that reflect their needs and aspirations.

Our Mission

To strengthen Inuit children, youth, and families by delivering culturally grounded programs and services that promote wellness, belonging, lifelong learning, and community leadership.

Our Vision

Healthy Inuit families.
Confident Inuit youth.
Strong communities.
Thriving cultures.
A future where Inuit living in urban spaces are supported through equitable, culturally safe, Inuit-led services.

Our Values

Our work is guided by Inuit values including:

- Respect
- Collaboration
- Community
- Lifelong learning
- Sharing knowledge
- Caring for one another
- Cultural pride
- Accountability
- Inclusion
- Strength through relationships

Why This Conference Matters

Today, nearly one-third of Inuit live outside Inuit Nunangat.

Urban Inuit communities continue to grow across Canada, bringing incredible opportunities while also highlighting the need for culturally responsive services designed specifically for Inuit.

Many organizations are working to improve access to health care, education, housing, employment, mental wellness, early childhood development, justice, and family services. However, these efforts are often carried out independently.

This conference creates space to bring everyone together.

Rather than working in isolation, we believe stronger outcomes emerge through collaboration.

Walking Together provides a national forum where Inuit organizations, governments, service providers, researchers, educators, funders, and community leaders can learn from one another, share innovative practices, celebrate successes, and build lasting partnerships.

Ultimately, this conference is about creating better futures for Inuit children, youth, families, and communities.

Conference Theme

Walking Together: Serving Inuit in Urban Spaces

Walking together is more than our conference theme.

It represents our collective responsibility to build relationships based on trust, respect, reciprocity, and shared purpose.

It reflects the understanding that no single organization can address the complex realities facing urban Inuit communities alone.

Instead, meaningful progress happens when communities, governments, organizations, educators, researchers, health professionals, and private sector partners come together with humility, listen to Inuit voices, and work collaboratively toward shared goals.

Throughout the conference, participants will explore innovative approaches that strengthen services while celebrating Inuit culture, resilience, language, knowledge, and leadership.

Conference Objectives

Walking Together has been designed to:

- Celebrate Inuit leadership in urban communities.
- Share promising practices from across Canada.
- Strengthen culturally safe service delivery.
- Foster collaboration between Inuit organizations and service providers.
- Highlight Inuit-led research and innovation.
- Promote youth leadership and engagement.
- Support cultural revitalization and language preservation.
- Encourage cross-sector partnerships.
- Inspire policy improvements.
- Build relationships that continue long after the conference concludes.

THE CONFERENCE EXPERIENCE

More Than a Conference

Walking Together: Serving Inuit in Urban Spaces is designed to be an immersive gathering that balances learning, relationship-building, cultural celebration, and practical action.

Every aspect of the conference has been intentionally planned to foster meaningful dialogue and create lasting partnerships that continue well beyond the closing ceremony.

Participants will engage with Inuit leaders, Elders, youth, community organizations, governments, researchers, educators, health professionals, and corporate partners in conversations that strengthen the collective capacity to support Inuit children, youth, and families living in urban spaces.

Whether attending to share knowledge, discover innovative practices, build partnerships, or explore opportunities for collaboration, every delegate plays an important role in advancing stronger, culturally grounded services across Canada.

CONFERENCE HIGHLIGHTS

Over three days, delegates can expect:

Inspiring Keynote Presentations

Hear from respected Inuit leaders, innovators, researchers, and changemakers who are advancing community wellbeing and shaping the future of urban Inuit services.

Interactive Learning Sessions

Participate in engaging breakout sessions designed to share practical tools, innovative programs, emerging research, and successful community initiatives.

Sessions will encourage discussion, collaboration, and the exchange of ideas that participants can immediately apply within their own organizations.

Inuit-Led Conversations

The conference will prioritize Inuit voices and lived experiences through panel discussions, storytelling, and facilitated dialogue.

Participants will explore important issues while celebrating community strengths and solutions.

Networking Opportunities

Dedicated networking events throughout the conference will create opportunities for delegates to develop meaningful relationships across sectors.

Whether connecting with community organizations, government representatives, researchers, or private-sector partners, these conversations often become the foundation for future collaborations.

Trade Show Marketplace

The exhibitor marketplace will showcase organizations, programs, services, technologies, educational resources, and innovative solutions that support Inuit communities.

Networking breaks will be intentionally scheduled within the trade show to maximize engagement between exhibitors and delegates.

Cultural Experiences

Culture is central to Walking Together. Participants will experience opportunities to celebrate Inuit knowledge, language, art, music, storytelling, and traditional practices throughout the conference.

These experiences will reinforce the importance of cultural identity as a foundation for wellness and community resilience.

Youth Leadership

Youth voices will be woven throughout the conference.

Emerging Inuit leaders will share their experiences, perspectives, and aspirations while helping shape conversations about the future of urban Inuit communities.

Elders' Wisdom

Elders provide invaluable guidance rooted in generations of knowledge and lived experience.

Their perspectives will help ground conference discussions in Inuit values while connecting participants to traditional teachings that continue to guide communities today.

CONFERENCE THEMES

Walking Together explores the many dimensions of serving Inuit living in urban communities through a series of interconnected learning streams.

While each session focuses on a unique topic, all contribute toward a shared vision of healthier families, stronger communities, and culturally responsive services.

- Traditional skills

Partnerships for Change

No organization can create lasting change alone.

This stream explores how governments, Inuit organizations, non-profits, educational institutions, healthcare providers, researchers, and industry can work together to build stronger systems that better serve Inuit communities.

Topics may include:

- Cross-sector partnerships
- Funding collaborations
- Collective impact
- Reconciliation in practice
- Community engagement

WHY PARTNER WITH THE CONFERENCE?

Investing in Stronger Communities

Walking Together provides organizations with an opportunity to support meaningful conversations that contribute to healthier Inuit children, stronger families, and more connected communities.

By partnering with the conference, sponsors demonstrate a commitment to advancing reconciliation through action while supporting Inuit-led initiatives that create lasting impact.

Your investment helps create opportunities for knowledge sharing, relationship building, youth engagement, cultural celebration, and collaborative problem-solving.

More importantly, your partnership supports a national gathering where those working alongside Inuit communities can learn from one another and build stronger systems together.

Why Organizations Choose to Partner

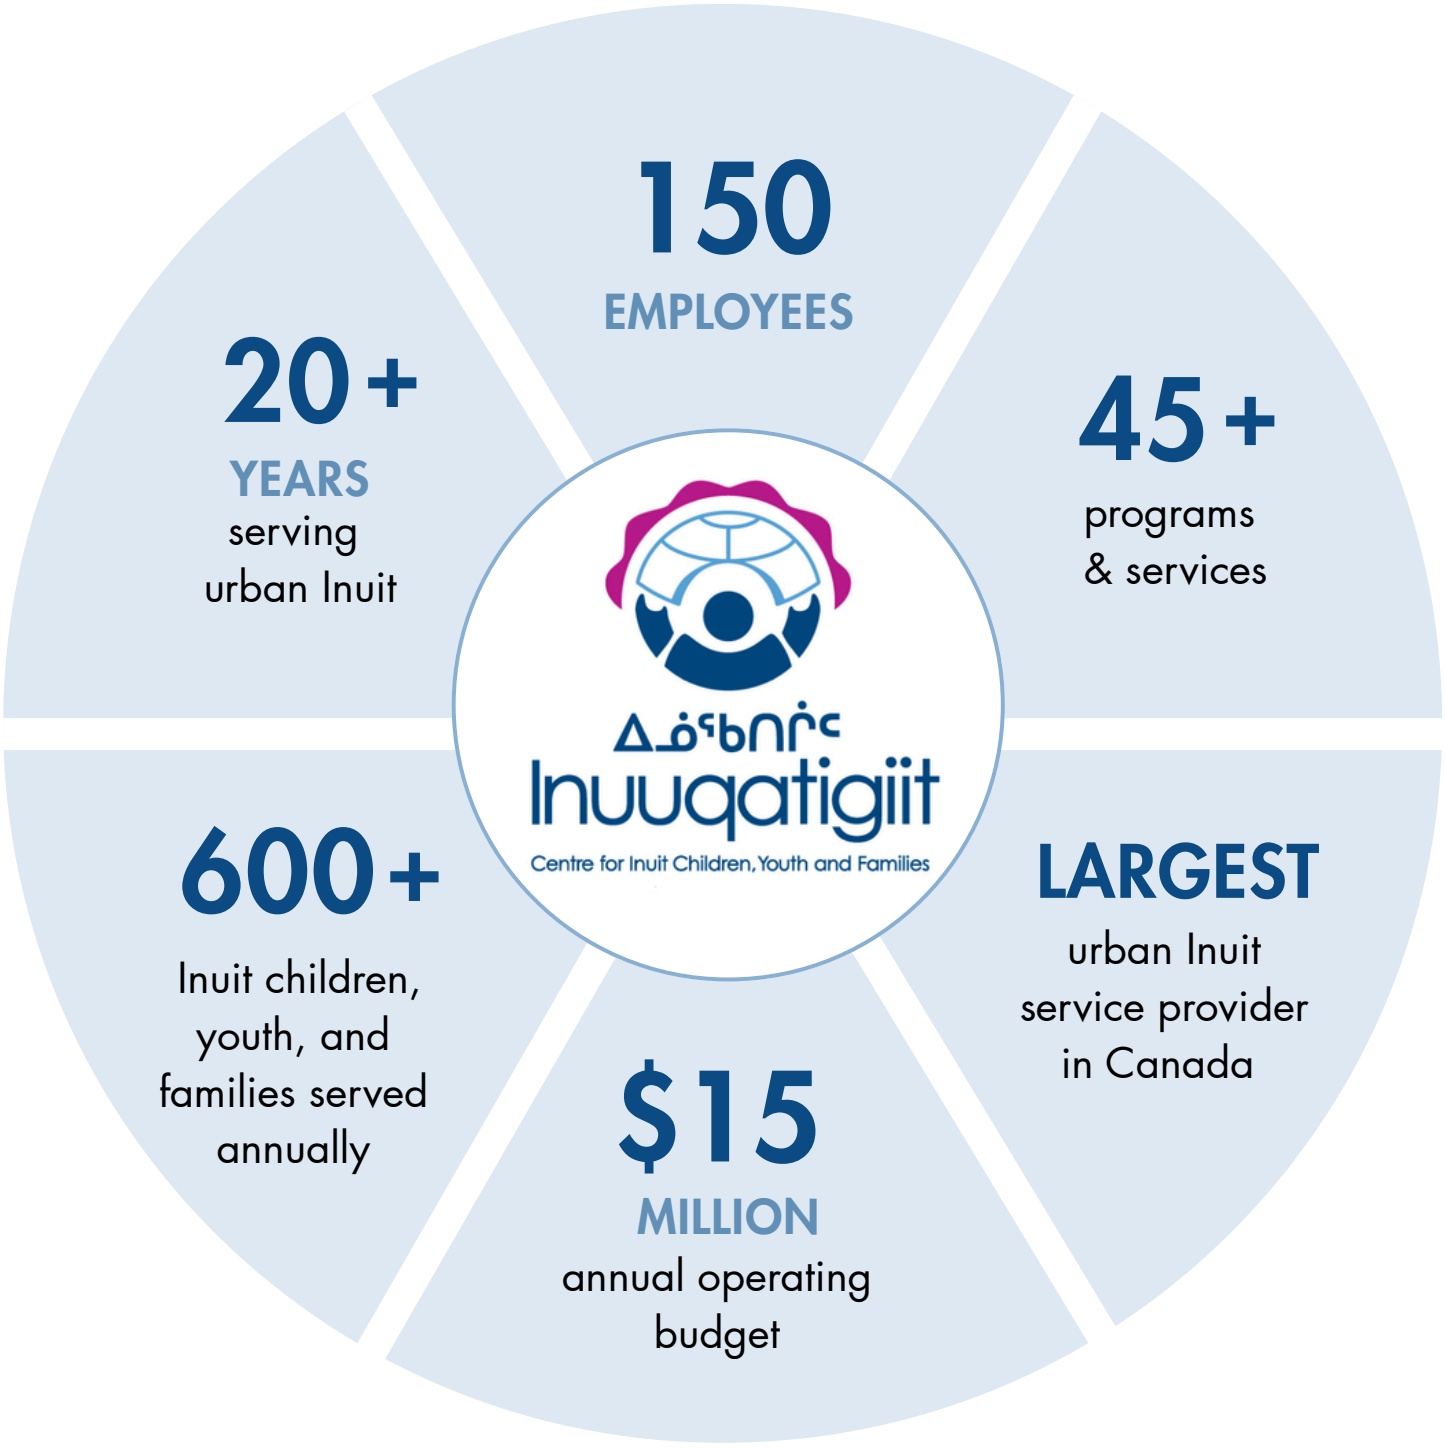

Organizations choose to support Walking Together because they recognize the importance of investing in people, relationships, and community.

As a conference partner, your organization will have opportunities to:

- Build relationships with Inuit organizations from across Canada.
- Connect directly with decision-makers and community leaders.
- Demonstrate your commitment to reconciliation and Indigenous partnerships.
- Increase brand visibility among a highly engaged audience.
- Share programs, services, and innovations that support Inuit communities.
- Foster long-term partnerships that extend beyond the conference.
- Support culturally grounded programming that benefits Inuit children, youth, and families.
- Position your organization as a trusted collaborator committed to creating meaningful social impact.

WHO YOU WILL MEET

Walking Together brings together professionals and leaders from every level of the Inuit service landscape.

Conference partners can expect to connect with:

- Executive Directors
- CEOs
- Inuit organization leadership
- Program Directors
- Community Coordinators
- Youth Workers
- Elders
- Educators
- Healthcare professionals
- Mental wellness practitioners
- Researchers
- Policy advisors
- Municipal leaders
- Provincial and territorial representatives
- Federal departments
- Funding agencies
- Philanthropic organizations
- Technology providers
- Professional service firms
- Community partners

These connections create opportunities for collaboration, knowledge exchange, business development, and long-term partnership.

Building Meaningful Connections

Unlike traditional conferences, Walking Together is intentionally designed to encourage conversation rather than transactions.

Networking events, shared meals, cultural activities, and collaborative learning environments provide natural opportunities for relationship-building.

For partners, sponsors and exhibitors, this means meaningful engagement with delegates—not simply logo recognition.

Being part of Walking Together means contributing to a shared commitment to strengthening Inuit communities.

WHY EXHIBIT?

Showcase Your Organization

The Walking Together Exhibitor Marketplace is more than a traditional trade show.

It is an interactive networking hub designed to encourage meaningful conversations between delegates and organizations that support Inuit communities.

Rather than placing exhibitors in a separate area, the marketplace will be integrated into the conference experience through networking breaks, meals, receptions, and dedicated engagement opportunities.

This approach creates consistent traffic while encouraging authentic relationship building.

Benefits of Exhibiting

Exhibiting allows organizations to:

- Introduce innovative programs and services.
- Demonstrate products and technology.
- Share educational resources.

Connection Through Presence

Whether exhibiting as an Inuit organization, government department, academic institution, technology provider, or corporate partner, your presence contributes to a collaborative environment where ideas are shared, relationships are built, and new connections begin.

Every conversation has the potential to strengthen services and improve outcomes for Inuit children, youth, and families.

> “When organizations come together with a shared commitment to Inuit priorities, meaningful connections become lasting partnerships and ideas become action.
>
> Your support of Walking Together helps create space for Inuit voices, strengthen relationships, and build stronger futures for urban Inuit communities.”

PARTNERSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

Partnering with Walking Together

Walking Together: Serving Inuit in Urban Spaces is more than a conference—it is an opportunity to invest in stronger communities, lasting relationships, and meaningful change.

Join Us in Walking Together

Meaningful change begins with meaningful relationships.

Walking Together: Serving Inuit in Urban Spaces is more than a conference—it is an opportunity to come together with a shared commitment to strengthening the wellbeing of Inuit children, youth, and families living in urban communities across Canada.

By participating as a partner, sponsor, exhibitor, or delegate, you are helping to create a national gathering where knowledge is shared, relationships are built, and innovative solutions are inspired. Together, we can celebrate Inuit culture, elevate Inuit voices, strengthen collaboration, and advance culturally grounded approaches that create lasting impact.

Whether your organization is looking to build partnerships, share expertise, support reconciliation, or invest in stronger communities, your involvement will help shape conversations and initiatives that extend far beyond these three days.

We invite you to walk alongside us as we celebrate the strength, resilience, and leadership of Inuit communities while working collectively toward a future where every Inuit child, youth, and family has the opportunity to thrive.

Together, we can create lasting relationships. Together, we can inspire meaningful change. Together, we can walk forward.

Get Involved

We welcome the opportunity to discuss how your organization can become involved in Walking Together: Serving Inuit in Urban Spaces.
